Political Points.
All the southern federal officeholders voted for their own renomination with that of Harrison as an incident. All the democratic gibraltars, where there are just about enough republicans who can read to fill the federal offices, were enthusiastic for renomination.— Minneapolis Times.

The supreme court of Michigan has held the "Miner law," which ordains that the Presidential electors for that state shall be chosen as congressmen are, by the various districts, and not as formerly, and as now in all other states by the state at large, to be constitutional.
But while thus ruling upon the constitutionality of the law, the court rebukes the motive that inspired it. The motive is to secure one or two, or more, democratic electors in a republican state. If the Michigan method were adopted in all states the republican party would have nothing to complain of, for it would gain more in the democratic states than it would lose in the republican ones.— Chicago Inter-Ocean.

It is possible that high-tariff speakers in the approaching campaign will avoid the subject of wages in protected industries.
The reductions recently made in that industry which has enjoyed the most comprehensive "protection," and the greater reductions now impending in that industry, make this subject rather unattractive for the republican campaigner because of the promises made by high-tariff leaders two years ago.
We have recently referred to the sharp reductions in the wages scale which are demanded by the iron and steel manufacturers of Ohio and western Pennsylvania.
The reductions proposed by Mr.
Carnegie's firm may be considered apart from those demands. The firm's novel and elaborate preparations for the defence of the works at Homestead show that Mr. Carnegie and his associates do not intend to make any concessions. On the other hand, the 3,000 workmen have decided that they will not accept the reductions.
The prospect at present is that the contest will be going on during the campaign.—New York Times.

The most remarkable sentence in the speech of President Harrison to the congratulating crowd after his nomination was this: "I have felt great regret that I was unable to find a suitable place for every deserving friend; but I have insisted that I did not disparage those I could not appoint to place." This is a most naive remark from a President, but it shows clearly Mr. Harrison's view of public office. It is a reward for his friends.
He laments that there were not spoils enough. The qualification for public service is friendship for him. "I am sorry," he says to his party associates, "that I could not reward all of you." Patriotism, disinterested support of principles, the duty of an honest exercise of the franchise, these are considerations that do not occur to him. He is sorry only that he could not pay with a public salary those who voted for him. A simpler and more childlike profession of faith in spoils as the mainspring of the duty of a citizen, we do not recall, and the President clinches it with the deprecation that he does not disparage those to whom he has nothing to give.—Harper's Weekly.

There was a characteristic republican glorification meeting in the White House when Mr. Harrison was formally notified of his nomination by a committee headed by the great champion of protection and high prices, Governor McKinley.
Mr. Harrison began his reply by referring to the party triumphs of four years ago, when "a republican President and vice-President and a republican congress were chosen," and continued in a congratulatory vein about "the general results of three years of republican control." The President did not mention that chief among these results was the great popular verdict of 1890, which emphatically condemned the unprecedented extravagance of the billion-dollar congress, the scandalous pension abuses which have drained the treasury, the high tariff burdens which have oppressed the people, and other consequences of republican misrule. He did not mention the fact that the republican victories of 1888, so far as congressmen were concerned, were turned into inglorious defeats at the elections of 1890, when the house was made overwhelmingly democratic. With these facts staring him in the face, and with the republican majority in the senate doomed, Mr. Harrison can hardly boast of a popular endorsement of his administration.—New York Herald.

The long and persistent efforts of republican senators who swell public expenses for subsidies, schemes of all sorts, salary grabs and sinecures have been steadily resisted by democratic houses, and two unfortunate occasions since 1875 when the republicans have controlled the house have witnessed extravagance and corruption culminating in the race for squandering the people's money, in which the late billion-dollar congress surpassed all of its predecessors.
The renomination of Mr. Harrison by the officeholders' convention once more puts this issue squarely before the country. He not only indorsed the extravagance of the billion-dollar congress and signed its laws, but went further than they did, demanding in his message the passage of a steamship subsidy bill of such mammoth proportions that it frightened a few timid republicans in the house, and the passage of an election bill that would have closed an already bankrupt treasury to pay an array of republican election officials.
The record is made up on the issue and it will be decided next November whether the great schemes of public plunder for individual and party benefit that were too much for the tough stomachs of the Reed house or its more aristocratic legislative adjunct, the republican senate, shall become laws in 1893.—National Democrat.

Ried and the Typographical Union.
Washington Post.
As the Minneapolis convention recedes into the past and the motives by which it was actuated, and conclusions at which it arrived, become subjects of calm and dis-passionate consideration, the report of conservative republicans becomes everywhere more pronounced that the ticket which won the victory of 1888 had not been renominated as a whole for the contest of 1892. There is no question raised as to the abilities of Mr. Reid or the value of his services to the party, but it can be said without derogation to either that his nomination for the vice-presidency does not command sincere approval, and that the apprehension of its providing a hindrance rather than help to the ticket is apparently justified by subsequent events.

It was certainly not good politics to nominate for Mr. Harrison's running mate a man whose first appearance in the canvas, it might have been known beforehand, had the foresight of the convention been as good as its hindsight, would necessarily be in a defensive attitude, nor is the wisdom of this action vindicated by the truth that has been patched up between the management of the Tribune and the typographical union. It is now evident that whether Mr. Reid makes his peace with the labor organizations throughout the country or otherwise, it would have been the better as well as the fairer policy to have nominated Mr. Morton for second place. This having been done no embarrassing complications would have arisen in any direction, and the ticket would have acquired the same comparative strength from the prestige of the vice-president that it secures from the prestige of the chief executive.

Territorial Items.
Business on the Santa Fe is a little slack just at present, and several crews were laid off last week.

A number of Las Cruces and Mesilla people had a picnic last Sunday near Dona Ana, and all had a good time.

The first penches of the season were shipped from Las Cruces Wednesday. The shippers were Judge Wood and F. C. Barker.

The "Stone Cabin" claim, on the great ore belt, at Lake Valley, was bonded for $50,000, by Jas.
Finch, to eastern parties, recently.

Mr. Knight, since he obtained control of the water works at Kingston, is making every effort to improve the service and has already made considerable headway.

Col. T. W. Heman and Jos.
Greishaber, of White Oaks, have been elected as representatives of Baxter lodge No. 3, K. of P., to the grand lodge, which meets in Raton in September.

The "Fortuna" mine, situated near the "Silver Tail," and owned by Gus Harmish, is bonded by Jas.
H. Perkins, formerly of Lake Valley, and now of Kingston, and is being worked by him.

"Sheba" Hurst is waiting the extinguishment of the forest fires before returning to his new find on the Animas Head. He exhibits some very promising looking rock, some of which resembles the rich Creede ore.

Richard English who has for the past two years filled the position of master mechanic on this division of the Santa Fe with headquarters at San Marcial has been promoted to be general master mechanic of the Atlantic & Pacific with headquarters at Albuquerque.

A fine specimen of brimstone from the Sulphurs, twelve miles from the James hot springs, was received in Albuquerque by Ben Jones, and is on exhibition at the White Elephant. The specimen will run about 40 per cent. in sulphur.

The stamp mill for the Mormon gold mine, owned by Brazell & Co., was shipped to the Organ mountains Wednesday. The machinery will be put up at once, and when in running order, if the claim pans out as it prospects, we may hear of something big.

Wednesday afternoon while Brakeman J. A. LaBarg, together with several others parties, was bathing in the Rio Grande near the bridge, below San Marcial, he went in water too deep for him, and went under several times before friends could reach him. He has not yet entirely recovered.

Aurelio Montoya was caught stealing goods from Martin Ama-dor's store at Las Cruces Thursday night. Mr. Amador had been missing articles from his store for some time and Thursday night employed the policeman, Anselmo Melendres, to watch his store, who caught the young man packing off goods and marched him to jail.

At the meeting of the New Mexico Mutual Game and Protective association in Las Vegas, the following officers were elected: President, C. S. Bahney of Socorro; vice-president, A. R. Quinly of Las Vegas; treasurer, J. A. Friedenbush of El Paso; secretary, Will Rosenthal of Las Vegas.

Socorro was fixed as the place for the annual tournament next year.
Beyond the working of the Cumberland mine on Mineral creek—which has another carload of ore ready for shipment—there is little doing in the North Percha country.
The mines around the noted Sweepstakes Hill lie idle. On the Sweepstakes Consolidated itself, out of which so much rich ore has been taken, nothing is being done at present, although Judge Whitham is arranging to go to work in a few weeks under a lease and has already some high grade ore on the dump awaiting shipment.
G. W. Fox has opened up a very fine looking ledge on his Black Diamond, across the creek, which is supposed to be a continuation of the rich ore bodies which run into the hill.

Cattle Notes.
One advantage in keeping pen-ches of salt where the cattle can help themselves is that there is no danger at any time of their eating too much.

At the sale of the entire Ayre shire herd of the late Thomas Brown of Montreal, Canada, six bulls were sold at an average of $106; thirty-three cows were sold at an average of $148. Heifers and calves averaged $108. This brings the average of $141 for the whole herd.

The big herd of cattle belonging to Col. Tussler, of Clayton, New Mexico, arrived on the river east of the Picketwire, Bent county, last week, and were piloted across the river and through the farming country on the north by that "old campaigner", Mac Dean. The herd is bound for the Powder river country, Montana, and numbers 2,700.

Louis Hunning, of Los Lunas, has shipped 600 head of cattle to C. E. Trask in South Dakota. Mr.
Hunning's ranch is located on the Rio Puerco, in Valencia county, and he reports no grass on the range and a great scarcity of water. Considering the condition of the country, the want of food and water, these cattle look fairly well. It is the opinion of Mr. Hunning that if rain does not come soon a large number of cattle in central New Mexico will die for the want of water.

At the experimental grass station conducted by the government at Garden City, Kansas, they have been trying several hundred new varieties of grasses, with a view to finding some that would make good meadows and pasture lands in the region where but little rain falls and irrigation is expensive, and sometimes altogether impracticable.
The experiments have been attended with marked success.
One of the grasses recommended with particular fervency is the brome-grass (bromis inermis), not long ago introduced from Europe.
This will make a good pasture nine months out of the year, or it will cut two crops of hay without irrigation and practically without rain. This might be well worthy of trial out here. What we want is an experiment station to make such tests as these for us.—Stock Grower.

Our export beef trade is a matter that has grown up almost wholly within the past fifteen years, but in 1890 it amounted to more than $33,000,000 for live cattle, and about an equal sum for beef products. If we were now compelled to find a market for this surplus within ourselves, it would seriously upset prices. The more we can increase this market, the better our prices will be for all cattle.
But to increase it, especially the exportation of live cattle, we must produce cattle of a better quality.
Not 6 per cent. of the cattle now received at our principal markets are of the quality demanded for export. If there were a few more of the proper class, more would be exported, and the entire market would respond to this relief with a higher level of prices.—Field and Farm.

Over fifty thousand cattle have come north by trail up to date and reports from along the route in northern Colorado say the herds are in very fine condition. There are about twenty thousand yet to come unless the owners change their minds and ship from Colorado points or sell to Kansas pasture owners. The year's drive added to shipments, will make the movement for 1892 greater than for a number of years and yet the south has many more to spare.
Especially is this true of New Mexico and Arizona. Texas, in most parts, can take care of her cattle this year, but room must be made somewhere in 1893 for this year's calf crop. Where is the leading question now agitating the minds of southern cattle growers.
Undoubtedly Wyoming will fall heir to many thousands of head as the present wet season is giving us a restoration of abundant range.— Northwestern Live Stock Journal.
